It seems that every 3D printer manufacturer used EOS, the high-end lens manufacturer, to get started—some of them even still do. That type of cooperation is not so common among creative software companies. ACR is a 12-bit raw processor that is now in its fifth version. ACR is a RAW processor that, historically, has included noise reduction, sharpening, demosaicking and a new color tone curve tool. It's also the first version of an Adobe program with a native video editor. The process continues with improved lens correction, a masking tool that can generate an edge-to-edge mask that will keep rolling details, AI noise reduction, the ability to look at layers separately and perform blending on two layers of the same image and improved file support. The program is still missing tools that I find essential: layers, an outline/mask and a vignette—a way to define a dark or bright area of an image where all pixels are specified on a layer. I'm still reaching for a version of Photoshop that can do what I want quickly and easily—I'll keep plugging away until I get that. Overall, this release is a major one for both professional users and hobbyists. The ability to work with video allows for real-time editing, with zoom, masking, restoration, and tracking, with a new selection mode and an assortment of filters. The better color separation means that you can easily visualize the color before you start editing. If you use filters and tools frequently, you'll notice that you can start to repeat a task, save time and ease the burden of using a manual or complicated brushstroke program.

In the Edit menu (CMD+E), check the Preserve Transparency option to keep the portion of your original image that overlaps with the new layer when you're finished. Go to Layer > New > Layer From Current Selection, click OK, and then any transparent areas of your layer will be preserved when you save it to a new image. Use the Adjustment Panel to fine-tune various image adjustments including Color, Exposure, Sharpness, and Shadows/Highlights. You may click the Best Fit box to open a dialog box that will help you choose the best adjustment to make your photo look as good as possible. You can also adjust a selected area in a photo by pressing the down arrow key on your keyboard while moving your mouse to highlight the area you want to change. The slider will move in increments of 1 percent and it's easy to see where you are and how much you have to go to get the desired effect. Photoshop is built with an intelligent and adaptive feature-finding technology called Content-Aware means it can find things for you. Lighten or darken the image: If you want to brighten the image, then you can use Graduated filter. Graduated filter helps you layer lighten an image. With the help of graduated filter, we can brighten the picture. Blur the image: If you want to blur the picture, then you can use Gaussian Blur filter. Gaussian blur allows you to give your pictures a softer look. It is one of the best filter for softening the picture and bringing out the characteristics of the image. Selective Color: If you want to change the color of a specific area in a photo, then you can use the Selective Color tool. In Adobe Photoshop, you can easily add or remove color from a specific area. The most exciting new feature for me is the new Adobe Sensei filters. These allow you to give your subject any look you like, by letting Photoshop cut and paste on top of your images with simple sliders. It's a way to quickly and easily change your imagery - turning it from mundane to majestic in seconds. Adobe has announced a host of exciting new features for its premium select product Adobe Photoshop. The most exciting new feature for me personally, is the ability to filter the AI so that people's eyes can be given any expression, shape or animation they like, in the time it takes you to say "AI technology". It's pretty nifty stuff! There's a host of new features to look forward to in 2021, such as a brand new feature called Scene builder, which allows you to assemble all of your elements into a single project - essentially making a cool video montage.
